Kipillinger Magazine Welcome to 20sometometing Finance. I am the founder, owner and exclusive author of this site. Long short story: I passed from zero save and significantly after graduation, to save more than 85% of my income in just a few years. I am embracing all aspects of a financially responsible lifestyle, low impact, proposed. And I'm telling my journey to financial independence on this site. Spoiler: Using ideology and strategies I write on this site, now I am financially independent. 20Someting Finance is for more than 13 years and has become one of the most frequent personal finances sites in the world. If you are new here, you can find each post in the files and sign up to get all new posts, grace. Also â € â € ¢ â € £ o Leave the name of the place scare you. If you are not in your 20 years, that's fine. arrested with the name), and 50% + of the readers here have more than 30 years anyway. Learn and share knowledge of personal finances is without age. Now, for the most detailed and dramatic story about why This site exists ... The best years? I had a good luck and privileged along the way, but nothing arrived easy. I grew up in a low-day class, a family of an income. I studied hard and I worked through the public schools. I worked along the teaching and college to help pay my path through the public university. I then graduated in the rescard of the bubble of technology bursting, with A BA of the State University of Michigan. After 300+ applications, I finally reached the work force and began to earn only $ 30k per year while working 50-60 + Hor As a week at a job that did not demand a university degree. Financially, I have no space to breathe - my cell phone, cable, internet, utility, car, fuel, rent, insurance, criterion card, student, student and food expenses were eating all My income. I had zero silly to speak and significant doubts. Without escape to sight, I began to question the work of all work, no more than 40 hours per week for 45 standard stands, which for most people results in just accompanying the latest consumer indulgences. The perspective of a life of work for this? I thought to be unthinkable. Taking measures I had to do something. I realized that if I was going to have some fragment of pleasure in life, I needed to give up the typical path of life. But my finances were holding me back. So, what did I do? I started hacking them. I married and had a cheap wedding - keeping the cost for less than $ 2,500. I sold my home strongly funded and moved to take over a higher income job. Instead of buying a larger house, I bought a smaller one. Then I sold our second car to get rid of the payments and began to ride a bike to work. I sold half of my personal belongings. I cut our phone bills for two ties and cut my cable account. I became a vegetarian, saved money on shopping, and we stopped dinner almost completely once we learned to cook. I limited my 401k. I stopped negotiating action and began to invest. I stopped paying for the health insurance of the traditional PPO of my company and changed to an HDHP and HSA, so they began to pay me. I re-I worked my wallet and began to use criterion cards to my advantage. I've changed for products and services that saved me a lot of money vs. Those who only take money. I was reversing the life cycle of the consumer acim. "Statute Å ¢ â € ™ and the material status stopped caring. As a result, my income started to increase, while my expenses decreased dramatically. I finally reached a personal savings rate more than 85% of the Gain - 21 times the 4% save-day rate. In short, my financial hacking was allowing me to save, in just two years, a higher percentage of income than most are cumulatively, over your whole career. Am I feeling depressed and private? On the contrary. I felt excited, directed and determined. Instead of fear and resentment, I began to feel hopeful about the future and was motivated to do even more. most. Independence has become an inevitable path, not just a dream. The disadvantages? There are no. I easily adjusted. I have all the things I need and more. And I became more creative, less materialistic and much more satisfied in life. I have a comfortable house, a great wife and wonderful pets. My wife and I bike, backpack, traveling, cooking, entertaining, we are in good health, and we have zero dulvida. We are not losing something that matters. What comes next? Let's take this journey from personal finances together. I learned a lot over the years I want to share with you. And I want to learn from you too. If you are fired in: the financial independence hacking your expenses for extremely low levels, reducing waste consumption and minimizing your impact on the environment learning the basics of personal hands and sharing Ideas with other healthy people, rich, well rounded, generous and struggling to and secure your own way in life ... so you are in the right place. In this episode, in the observation of the heart of the hear think we only had to survive the pandemic of Covid-19; Unfortunately, we had to worry about so many other ridiculous events. If you are having trouble remembering all the insane absurd that happened this year, you are not alone. We scared the dangerous creatures and how we were cleaning ours. We actually received some WTF news from the US government. Maybe Carole Baskin be guilty for all this bag. Let's take a back to the memory list in the hell of fire of 2020 to remember some of the craziest moments of the blockade, the giant insects of the SIA called "murder hornets" jumped on cargo ships to cross the ocean and entered the U.S. For the first time. Photo Courtesy: Karen Ducey / Stringer / Getty Images These predatisfied insects are poisonous, and a bit dike like heck. Researcher Jun-Ichi Takahashi told the New York Times that "a bit of stings can be fatal," then it is easy to see why we all enter Panic mode. Unfortunately, Killer's Hornets are going to "John Wick" and wiping the entire hammers within hours. However, on a positive note, sightings are rare, and they have not terrified Americans ... Okay, maybe I'll be very far away with this title, but people fought and accumulating the toilet paper - finally causing scarcity. As Covid-19 hit U.S., the toilet paper has become the 2020 version of Beanie Babies Shraza. Photo Courtesy: Alexi Rosenfeld / Collaborator / Getty Images When the shops are over, companies began to offer rolls with their orders. Did you buy a salad from a restaurant? The "Tima News, comes with a side of the toilet paper! Sometimes we did not have choice not to know strangers to make offers of toilet paper. A woman even negotiated a $ 200 dress for the domestic clip. Do we learn our lesson of hygienic paper by buying on panic? No! Then, here we go again with another shortage at the end of 2020. The hygienic paper craze also placed bidet in the spotlight, already Items flew off the shelves. This also was the year the famous Cyberattack group returned from the shadows. Since 2004, anonymous declared war in many organizations and people, such as churches, governments and kkk. But the "digital refinancies" were silent in 2016. Photo courtesy: RT / Youtube following polish police From George Floyd in May, a viral video was released, making the world believe that anonymous was back. The person in filming had a frightening and distorted voice and the trademark guy from the Fawkes Mascara group, saying, "Sautigations, citizens of the United States. This is a message of anonymous for the department of Minneapolis Police." So, his next target was the polish. The rumors spread that hacktivists close polish systems throughout the nation and leak private files in the summer, but no official reports determined, in fact, the anonymous was the attacker. According to the Atlantic, "Annimo was indeed reactivating." Can you believe that all this happened while we were only six months in the year? Out of all Netflix's terrible shows, we could have locked us, we become fanatics of King Tiger Grands to Joe Exotic. Why was the world as obsessed with this zookeeper? Maybe it was his strange fascinium with Carole Baskin that attracted us. The reason could also have been your fancy wardrobe, polygan lifestyle or unbelievable drama. Whatever it is, Tiger King was the perfect distract during blockade. Photo Courtesy: @ joe exotico / instagram what Joe is exotic to now? Well, the drama we loved from the show placed it behind the bars. Since then, he has done whatever it takes to leave, including spending $ 10,000 at Trump Hotel to convince the president to launch him. In the true exotic fashion Joe, he recently asked for "Kim Kardashian to help him have a forgiveness of Donald Trump." Honestly, this is more than 2020 that I have heard all year round. Remember when the government has casually dropped the evidence and never talked about it again. However, when the government admits something, it is denied years, this is a great negotiate. We were just worried about, you know, the rest of the bag 2020. Photo Courtesy: CBS This morning £/Youtube Viveos in question were shot by sea pilots in 2004 and 2005, showing "phenã' Menos NO REACHES Not identified ". The Department of Defense took so much time to tell the public the truth about filming, then makes us think what else the DOD may be hidden. If your employees release anything else in 2020, we will probably say "OK" and continue our day again, again.
