It's the first thing you see when you open your browser every morning or turn on a new card: It's your empty page, dashboard or web gateway. This week we want to know about your favorite home page.Update: For the five most popular tools, check the five best startup pages; Take a look at the most popular tool for work from that bunch.Your Start page is the first thing you see when you open your browser or load a new "Your / Leader / Leader Morefoto di Whitafričan.two years ago Made a hive five for the best initial pages, but in light of all the changes in the main browsers and some truly innovative starting pages that are cut out between and now, we returned to revisit the topic. If you use a startup page. Web-based or an initial page generated by your web browser natively (if it is an extension or default value), we want to hear it. Whatever method you use to upload the home page, tell us what makes your home page of choice. Both Whether you use it to keep up to date on the latest news or as a launch point for the rest of ... Continue the five nominations take place in the comments, where you publish your favorite work tool. Ott We enter hundreds of comments, so to make your appointment clear, please including it at the top of your comment as: Vote: Best Start Page. Please do not include your vote in an answer to another commentator. Instead, do your vote and answer separate comments. If you don't follow this format, we cannot count your vote. To prevent the tampering of the results, the votes of the first time commentators cannot be counted. After making your appointment, let us know what makes it stand out of the competition. About The Hive Five: The Hive Five Feature Series asks readers to answer the most frequently requested question we get: "What tool is the best?" Once a week we will extract a call for contenders in search of the best solution to a certain problem, then your favorite tools tell us to do the job. Every weekend, we will report with the first five recommendations and we offer you the possibility of voting on which it is the best. For an example, check the alvario last week five best operating systems netbook.netbooksÀ e à, ~ "low power and lightweight mini-notebooks that have grown in popularity - practically ... practically ... connect la Home is the first thing you see when you see when you see when you see when you see when you open your browser or upload a new "your gateway for the rest of the web. Get the most out of the home page with one of these five favorites. If the start page you are using is the default setting of your browser or you have carefully selected it, checking these contenders for the best home page will give you the opportunity to decide if your current home page serves your needs or if it might oare an update. First, a note on our methodology, different popular voices in hive five this week are essentially clones to each other (only for different browsers,) so we opted to combine the most popular options alone as-other-others in order to give you give yourselfHive Five more diversified. You'll notice, for example, the entry on Speed Dial-like home pages includes Chrome's home page, Opera's Speed Dial, and Speed Dial for Firefox all in one entry instead of spreading them so you can squeeze more options into the final result.Photo by Kairos Photo.about:blank (Free, Browser-Independent) In modern web browsers, typing about:XXX provides various information depending on which part XXX is. (For more information on the various about: variables, gloss on this Wikipedia article.) about:blank is the universal code for "showing a blank HTML document", and many Lifehacker readers prefer this as a home page "or anti-start" in a way! "because it burns every session and every new board with a clean whiteboard that doesn't use unnecessary resources or bandwidth. It's fast and without distractions. Fav4.org (Free, Web-Based) Fav4 is probably the most elegant of the home pages presented on this page, not to mention the extreme-minimalist approach of about:blank. The agreement is simple: Visit Fav4 and click on the custom gear in the bottom right corner. From the customization menu, you can select your four favorite sites from the list of provided sites or suggest a new site if they don't have one of your favorites. Drag and drop the four selected sites into the customization sidebar, and the sites will be displayed as displayed in the above screen as four large icons in the browser window. You do not need to register to use the service: save your browser settings using cookies instead of requesting login. Given how much of the average user's web traffic is directed to a small selection of sites, having only four sites in the bar isn't as restrictive as it would seem before. iGoogle/Google (Free, Web-Based) Google made two appearances in this week's Hive Five on two distinct ends of the home page spectrum. For many, Google.com is their go-to search engine of choice, so it was natural to make Google's basic search portal their home page. Others love Google as a search tool, but want more from their home page, so use iGoogle (see screenshot above). iGoogle is widget-based Google home page. Not only can you embed widgets for almost all Google services, including Gtalk, Gmail, Google Calendar and Google Reader, you can add other widgets from the vast iGoogle widget directory. Chrome's New Tab / Opera Speed Dial / Speed Dial for Firefox (Free, Browser-dependent) Thumbnail-based "speed dial" home pages have grown in popularity since Opera introduced Speed Dial two years ago. You can enable or install Speed Dial style home pages in the most popular browsers in a variety of ways. Opera set the stage for home pages based miniatures with the original Speed Dial, which allows you to specify up to 25 miniature sites on the Speed Dial page for quick access. Google Chrome has its New tab page, which displays the most frequently accessible web pages, as well as recentlytabs (view in the screenshot above). Finally, Speed Dial for Firefox is an extension for Firefox that brings Opera-style Speed Dial to Firefox. It is not so shiny in appearance as the actual offer from Opera or auto-updating as the New tab page in Chrome , but it gets the job done . (You can actually find all kinds of Speed-Dial style extensions for Firefox, but this version is what collected the most number of votes.) Personalized (Book, Independent from Browser) While some people are content with the blank about:blank and others settle for the initial set-in minority page readers Why limit yourself to the shape and function of an initial page designed by someone else when you can build your home page to meet your needs and arm with it to make it simple or complex as you need? Initial page readers create as varied as their HTML chops allow, but for a surprising amount of readers, the best home page is what you plan and upload as a local HTML document or save on the web server for personal use from anywhere you do your navigation. Pictures of jphilipg. Now that you have had the opportunity to look beyond the contenders for the Start Page crown, it is time to express your vote: Honorable mention goes to Netvibes, a rich feature and widget-based home page, and the various browser session restore features, which upload previous windows and tabs that had opened instead of an initial page. Do you want to offer more reasons why your favorite is so high to you want to talk about an initial page that didn't cut? To the comments! The opinions expressed by the employees of the entrepreneur are theirs. You are reading Entrepreneur India, an international franchise of Entrepreneur Media. The thought of Edusports Shutterstock Shared vision and shared reality – two fundamental aspects for companies that have more co-founders – ideally two or three, but not twelve, as we have seen in the case of the Housing real estate platform. com. Shared vision is probably the easiest part, that is to say that we as a company will reach x finish in the y period. But the easiest thing to say is to have a shared reality. "If your reality and mine are different in business, then it's a red signal," warns Majmudar, co-founder and CEO of EduSports. What remains the unknown fact among many, in almost all the business that goes to rolls, is that the understanding of a member of the board of directors of what does not go into business makes little sense to others, if not completely excluded. The way outMajmudar thanks his instinct and co-founders for not even leaving roomleast part of that situation creep into Edu. Sports. Companies around the world have their core team members "separated" from each other embedded in their cabins. And that's how it works. It's the natural way to work. But Majmudar and his team did the exact opposite. The same room. It may seem unusual for others, but we are all aware of the other problem, whether it is produced, customer, marketing etc., in real time instead of summarizing it the other as an update later on one Discussion, à € says. For those who are à € à € œCabinedà € " is slightly harder to have that shared vision. Well, of course, you can meet every hour, but this doesn't really happen while, à € œ ... if I'm sitting next to you and feel you pass through, let's say a customer escalation problem then I'm already aware of the problem before to inform me. So, it's all in tune with what your problems are, à € you believe Majmudar. Does the impact, have something tangible comes out of such established to Edusports? à € œYsà € says Majmudar. He tells: à € œWhen we started, I thought of focusing on the in-school sports education rather than after-school, but other co-founders had different suggestions. Only, when we talked to people and different schools, while working from a common room and listen, everyone understood it and the conviction of focusing on the school school was shared.à € another key decision À It was that they should focus on junior schools instead of middle schools that were not the case. Majmudar is happy that everyone still work from a single room. à has been an important decision from a perspective of corporate management, he adds him.
