Customize the Background To change the action bar background, create a custom theme for your activity that overrides the actionBarStyle property. /> Customize the Text Color To modify the color of text in the action bar, you need to override separate properties for each text element: For Android 3.0 and higher only When supporting Android 3.0 and higher only, your style XML file might look like this: res/values/themes.xml @style/MyActionBar @style/MyActionBarTabText @color/actionbar_text @style/MyActionBarTitleText @color/actionbar_text @color/actionbar_text For Android 2.1 and higher When using the Support Library, your style XML file might look like this: res/values/themes.xml @style/MyActionBar @style/MyActionBarTabText @color/actionbar_text @style/MyActionBar @style/MyActionBarTabText @color/actionbar_text @style/MyActionBarTitleText @style/MyActionBarTitleText @color/actionbar_text @color/actionbar_text Customize the Tab Indicator To change the indicator used for the navigation tabs, create an activity theme that overrides the actionBarTabStyle property. To help you, the Action Bar Icon Pack includes standard action icons for use with both the Holo light and Holo dark action bar. If your app uses navigation tabs or the split action bar, then you can also specify the background for these bars using the backgroundStacked and backgroundSplit properties, respectively. Without a parent style, your action bar will be without many style properties unless you explicitly declare them yourself. This property points to another style resource in which you override the background property that should specify a state-list drawable. You can apply these themes to your entire app or to individual activities by declaring them in your manifest file with the android:theme attribute for the element or individual elements. For example, here's a state-list drawable that declares a specific background image for several different states of an action bar tab: res/drawable/actionbar_tab_indicator.xml
