Correct answer: time after time | ABC Time Travel has been a huge tendency on TV in the last years and this midbarian is not different. Case in question? March is bringing us not one, but two new team traveling shows: the fox's day, making history and the abc drama, time after time. Each sést rie sounds very interesting and both the hail of acclaimed creative teams. Making history comes from the writer's mind and producer Julius Sharpe (family face), and is produced by no one less than Hollywood's most difficult work, Phil Lord and Christopher Miller. Meanwhile, the time after time was created by Kevin Williamson, the creator behind the hit shows like the Dawson creek, the vampire diaries and the following. But while both shows may seem promising, it is likely that you do not want to compromise with both. After all, there's a lot of good TV to watch these days and just so many hours in a week. So, which of these two shows is really worthy of your time? We have the answer. Read more to find out! A (s) Premise (s) Adam Pally and Yassir Lester, in making history | Fox First, let's break the Básica premise of each show. Doing the story follows Dan, a nerd computation science teacher whose life becomes much more exciting after he comes across a time travel apparatus (in the form of backpack!) He left behind for his dad. He will begin to travel to the century XVIII and for the season XVIII with a co-worker, using his knowledge of the future to make new friends and even a new girlfriend (who just happens to be the daughter of Paul Revere). What both do not realize is that his intrusion could change the whole course of history. Cue chaos. A (s) Premise (s) Continuation (Aches) | Freddie Stroma and Josh Bowman in time after time | ABC Time After Time takes a more dramatic approach to the trip in time. Based on the 1979 film of the same name (which was inspired by the book of Karl Alexander), the show follows a younger version of the famous scientific fiction writer HG Wells as he is transported to Modern Day Manhattan in search of Jack the Ripper. Yes, that Jack the Ripper. Once H. G. arrives in New York City today, he finds a world that he never thought possible - and a captivating young woman who should help him track the serial killer. So who plays who? This takes us to a é "1 | The cast Leighton Meester and Adam accompany the story | Fox make the story presents a strong cast with Adam Playing the main character. Dan. As the Happy Final Fans or Mindy Project will tell you, the placement is practically always a deletion to watch and that Do not change here. His goofy character makes a perfect counterpart for Deborah Leighton Meester, a sweetly swallowed young woman who is captivated by the seemingly infinite knowledge of Dan (little she knows). Even more importantly, a statement has a great relationship with Yassir Lester, who plays friend, co-worker and meeting companion, Chris. John Gemberling and Neil Casey complete the story of making history as John Hancock and a hilariously mischievous Adams, respectively. Word for the Sibio: just because Adams is a founding father does not mean that you should trust him with your beer. The cast continued ... Freddie Stroma and Josh Bowman in time after the horaker | Time ABC After the time also revolves around a major character trio. Freddie Stroma does a fair job touching a younger and more charismatic poço, who is eager to make his mark in the world - starting with his crescent on the trip in time. Meanwhile, Josh Bowman offers a much less beloved portrait of John Stevenson Aka Jack, Ripper, who uses Wells Time Travel Machine to escape the pursuit of his own time. Given that the show is supposed to be a cat and mouse game between the two, it is crucial that Bowman and Stroma share convincing dynamics. Unfortunately, it seems that the two barely met, much less have any kind of affinity for each other. Stroma shares a slightly better chemistry with rodriguez geneves, playing Jane Walker, the Museum Museum Wells is the current New York. The two characters hit it fairly quickly, but its Interface f o Á © ameaşada evil plans by Jack RipperÁ € s. Time travel conceitÁ Adam Pally and Yassir Lester in Making History | Fox ThereÁ € s no shortage of travel shows on time on TV these days, but some do work aÁ better than others. In the case of making history and Time After Time, both shows in the é waste time introducing the element in its plot, with at least one character perÁodos jump early in both drivers. But the similarities in approach practically stop aÁ. Making story makes time travel engraşado again, using the concept of heroes gently mock the past, BAşbedlo story style. He doesn't get caught up in aspects tÁ © cnicos travel in time and youÁ € re watching, you Tamba © m at the é should. This isnÁ € t show on ciÁnçia by trÁis jump between periods of time, itÁ € s about instituişAs American mocking Á € | and perhaps proving that our parents ARENA founders € t up a good-natured joke (especially if it involves a urnal). In contrast, Time After Time jumps to the future rather than to a past that unfortunately means that you can expect to see the characters that make some wonder previsÁvel in mobile phones, hoverboards, and other forms of modern technology. As if that wasnÁ € t bad enough, StromaÁ € s Wells makes some cringeworthy comments pointing out the Differences in how women and people of color sÁ € o treated these days. Everything seems clichÁ³ and a little half-baked, especially since Wells and Stevenson sÁ f evil established last before being catapulted to the future. The funnyÁ vs. Josh Bowman drama as Jack the Ripper in Time After Timea | While ABC shows may share the fantÁstico element of time travel, they are divided into different genres general, although to different levels of success. Making the story Á © one wholesal © day quite simple and it does it well, delivering consistent and engaging laughter performances of all its cast members. Not every joke lands (and some f sensaşÁ type the outdated), but you can always tell that something strange will happen sooner rather than later that one, to be frank, Á © more than can be said about a lot of wholesal © day on TV these days. On the other hand, Time After Time combination f Á © one drama the era Á © © and a sound series of f ficÁŞÁ the cientÁfica. This strange mashup doesnÁ € t always work, mainly because the drama just isnÁ € t compelling enough to keep you in tune. Although pareÁsa that there must be a lot of material to mine, the show doesnÁ € t make much use of it. Instead, the driver offers a very prÁximo and especially maşante rereading the film 1979 itÁ € s based. What else works Adam Pally Ina Making story | Fox Gives story making up space to deviate from its central premise. The backpack while traveling can take the characters anywhere in the past and in later episÁdios, they take advantage of to travel to the middle of the sÁ © culo 20 Chicago, among other places. This means thereÁ € s plenty of opportunity for many diverse and the é fun adventures to come. As Time After Time, the show still has a lot, well, time to ramp ATA © his narrative, now that itÁ € s established its central premise in the pilot. If he mines these opportunities and perhaps open his plot to discuss some major issues on the Differences between the world todayÁ € s past and could live Ata © its full potential. What else doesnÁ € work Ta Freddie Stroma as H. G. Wells on Time After Time | ABC While Making History cast generally share a great chemistry, the show could do a better job of making viewers care about Dan and blooming DeborahÁ € s relationship. After all, if hea € estÁ willing to (literally) to rewrite the story to be with her, which probably Being a little more invested in your relationship. Time After Time has the material for more inventive with the concept of travel in time. Must take advantage of which, instead of relying on a state miscellaneous, done made Tropes. The LEIGHTON MEESTER background line. Adam Pally and Yassir Lester in making history | Fox If you are looking to add a new travel time show to your DVR, there is only one worth spending your time in this midseason: making history. It's silly and surreal and can do all the travel time thing to feel fun again, instead of just wearing. In addition, in today's climate of politic uncertainty and societary, what better way to spend time (forgive the pun) than revisiting the revolutionary revolutionary days? Making history premieres on Fox on 5 March 8:30 Est. Time after time is also premiered on 5 Mar. Est on ABC. Check out the entertainment Cheat Sheet on Facebook! As designers, over time, we tend to make specialists in typography. We know the fonts that we use intimately, learning about the shapes, nuances and character - no puns - from each. We can fall in love with sources in certain weights or styles, or even individual letters. Favorites are adored and also some sources are avoided and avoided. And that is why our new book - 100 best types of font already - produced in association with FontShop AG and for sale now, is absolutely unforgettable. Let us explain a little more why we produce this book ... text is one of the central elements of any project, next to images and negative space. The message you need to communicate will be written here using combinations of our 26-letter alphabet. Most western bangs descending, in part, at least, from Latin. Therefore, it is not surprising that our alphabet today derives from the 22 characters used á € á € á € á € in ancient Rome. Of course, the Romans were not the first to have a written language. The sums, Egyptians, Maya and many other old cultures were pictograms. Each small carved image was a word, and they used thousands of pictograms to record their scientific and historical achievements, and their beliefs. What is special about Latin, and Greek before, is that each graphic form - or letter - represents a sound instead of a whole word. The sounds together form words, and these give the meaning of our communications. By writing them, we can give the permission of the message. They can be written in stone or paper. And thanks to the invention of Johannes Gutenberg of the press at the end of the DÁ © Each of 1440, we can make many copies and distribute communication far and broad. Gutenberg's day, books were copied by scribes - usually in monasteries - in calligraphy calligraphy. The Carolingian script was being replaced by the most elegant genus with all the heavy - vertical traces and curved lines, horizontal and delicate diagonal. Inevitably, the artists of Gutenberg's day sought to replicate the genetic letters in the carved mobile blocks that created to go to the presses. These types of cutters were inspiring in other forms of writing. As the humanist filsofohes of the lighting that were rediscovering and the classical texts, poetry and books of history, these craftsmanships have analyzed everything from Roman registration to illuminated edges of the dark age to present new letters. It was your work to print the texts of antiquity by audiences of the century XVI and XVI. This, arguably, was the beginning of typography, one of the most obsessively detailed forms of creativity. The issue is: why is it important that new and different interpretations of letters, numbers and score were developed? Readability is a matter. Once we learn to read our braces do not look more at the individual letters. We see words like forms or groups of forms. As our minds drink with headquarters against information in the text, we do not want to take a break to mentally swallow a piece of letters that we can not recognize. And that old gastic text is Chunky things. Therefore, it is a Good type that cutters began to rationalize the alphabets they used for readability. Certainly, a choice of fonts is desirable for estate reasons. You could compare the design for the of architecture. An architect could not and would not build structures using only one type of brick. As a typograph and co-founder FontShop Erik Spiekermann pointed out, letters are like bricks, and you need more than a type of brick for with Letters Construction represent Soundsimilarly, we will not forget that the lyrics Printed represent sounds. When we talk, we use all kinds of pitches, tones and inflections. With different types of letters, we can give the written word intonation and fill it with expression.
